My Gameplay With Every Server (Heaps Of Gameplay) and A Fishing Guide: In Theory In theory, any bot could try to duplicate the behaviour of a human player. An easy way to describe such a bot is to say it's a program that guesses what a player might do or intends to do next, and then does or plans to do the same thing. Fishing bots are of great interest because they highlight the "thinking" part of the game – the tactics, strategies, and game play, which have long been ignored for most people. Recently, the game has become incredibly sophisticated and the market is rife with bots that provide game play that is indistinguishable from players who have been honing their skills for weeks or months on end. It can be hard to tell if a bot is at all competent because the learning curve involved with fishing is so high. In theory, there are also bots that are black hat and quite dangerous. There are many ways to hack WoW's API to make fishing bots. Some are level 17, and some are level 41. Some hacks are safer than others. Player versus Bots Player versus Bots (PvB) is a form of PvP where the bots play against each other. It is also occasionally referred to as Animal Versus Automaton. Level 62 was a maximum level fishing skill level for the fishing skill in World of Warcraft up until the release of patch 4.3. Modes Each bot has its own unique modes. Some are generic, while others are more complex. Basic bots do not require any prior learning. They may perform one or two actions, may use specific actions repeatedly, or may use a certain set of actions. Well-made bots are built around specific goals. Some bots are designed to be a good player with their own style, while others 1cb139a0ed
