What's new in Elden Ring:

5 and we need to make sure that we don't end up with another game that just looks pretty and doesn't have any content, so the best thing is we do the other stuff and it's just that they decided not to get to this. As Ben says, once you go all the way down that road, there's no way back, so we need to make sure that we do our best to reduce the chances of them just going and making a game that costs like $20 and doesn't have anything in it.

When you think about some of these movies like Blade Runner or Transformers or Gattaca, I think that the reality of technology is the next generation. What happens, for instance, if you meet you know you can copy someone, or they can copy you? So we took that theme and tried to actually make it into an actual game.

It's true that we were playing around and made a few prototypes, two or three prototypes, it was pretty fun actually, so... we decided to go all the way with it.

"The Long Prison" is in itself an unusual game for us to produce. A game in which we decided to take a more artistic direction, while developing something new with our own game engine. And yet, we also hope to raise awareness of the game in the same time. Thus, we have taken the path of "5"!

We were in charge of producing this trailer for promotional purposes.

It should be noted that there were some really gory deaths in this game. The focus of Battle Royale was to give you as much ammo as possible and guide you through the game to the end.

We purposely prepared the game for the people who don't use the internet and don't use consoles.

The reason we don't have internet access in our house is not because Ben is too poor or the kids don't want to learn how to use the internet. We have a work from home position, so no need to be close to our office where our team is. In addition, the place we rented is quite a big house, so there's just no need to have the place full of people. This also made sure that our lives at home will be quieter.
