Blood-brain barrier: development, structure and function. The blood-brain barrier (BBB) is a dense network of cells scattered throughout the brain and acts as a selective barrier that controls the supply of nutrients and removal of waste from the brain. The BBB functions as a barrier to different solutes, and the unique structure of the endothelial cells, made of a continuous thin membrane and tight junctions, allows selective exchange between blood and brain compartment, thereby limiting the transport of endogenous substances into the brain. The barrier is formed by three major components: tight junctions (TJs), adhe

What's new in Flappy Galaxy : Master Level:

Icon Pack Sneak Peek You don't have to be a hardcore game developer to create fabulous game apps, even from the simplest concept. In fact, all you need is an iPhone, a good set of skills and a dream to see your glittering creation across the market place. In this master level tutorial, we're going to build Flappy Galaxy, a game that uses only 7 icons to show an astronaut zoom across the galaxy. To get this work, you'll need to build a few things, so dig in!

Previewing the Menus To keep things moving (till the very end) we're going to achieve this in 2 stages. At the first stage, in this tutorial, we're going to create all the screens that you'll want in this app. Once we've got all of that in place you'll be able to build on it with your own tools. In Stage 2, we'll build a cutaway set of screens that will lead us to the completed app.

Step 1 - Layout UIs Before you start work on your app, it's probably a good idea to lay out what you'll need to place the UI controls onscreen. As you go along, the screens and layout will change, but we'll bring you back to them again. First, open the Photosphere Icon Library and drag icons to your view. Here are the icons you'll need to place onscreen: Next, create a default UIViewController (it's easier to place and size things for now) and place a UITableView and a UIView beneath that. Now, with your view controller selected, open the Attributes Inspector and double-click on the Views section. Since you're placing the views in code, you can see now how the views are sized each at 90%. Drag the following views to create the background of your app:

Step 2 - Scrollable Views We want a self-scrollable 2d tab view that contains a UITableView, so the first thing we need to do is to create the containing view. First, create a new file and name it ScrollableViewControllers.m. Within this file, import the QuartzCore framework and create the
