What's new:

Wouldn't it be great if every time you downloaded an Android app/game you got a reward? Well Google Play gets you half of that "reward". You don't get to keep this reward but you're still rewarded for downloading the game/app. However the "reward" isn't a coin or some points. Here is what Google Play will send you: As we mentioned in a previous article, you can use Google Play credit to buy in-game content directly from Google Play. A portion of your Google Play credit will be sent to users every time they purchase content from Google Play. If the user purchases an in-app item, the amount of credit received will depend on the item's price. The user might be surprised to see that they get only 50% of the app/$10 total price you had in mind. But at least you can definitely use your acquired Google Play credit on games, movies or TV shows, or apps that you already have in Google Play. Google Play credits are sent to you within 5 days after your in-app purchase is completed in Google Play, and Google Pay will not cut you off. A transparent Google Play payment status will be displayed in your Google Play menu to help you understand when your account balance will become charged or depleted. If you purchase a game on Android television, Google Play will process and dispatch the amount of credit to you in one or more transactions. As Google Play credits are earned, they can be used in full or in part to buy content and make in-app purchases in games and apps on Google Play. I will get a paypal referral code from Google Play but you're getting no point's in my side! Actually its a referral only to my account, which means its something like, you will get 5% of usin the paypal account for billing! This works like this. Im going to give you a paypal referral code, so you can redirect your referrals for your Paypal account, but when paying you'll get me a paltry 5% of the charges at my end. The naive thought is this. You are getting the 50,000 rubles as a "reward". But as long as you bought it for 50000 rubles, you have to face the responsibility of the reward. Google Play is not punishing us for playing Clash of Clans, they just wanted to get rid of our 50000 rubles to
