The surface-phosphorescent emission of green organic light-emitting diodes (OLEDs) has been fabricated using phosphorescent iridium complexes in which the emission is generated by energy transfer from a standard green emitter (4,4'-bis(carbazol-9-yl)biphenyl (CBP)) to the phosphors. The surface-phosphorescent green OLEDs exhibit an efficiency of 21.5 cd A-1, a current efficiency of (3.1-9.8) cd A-1 for luminous power of 100 mW cm-2, a luminous efficiency of (2.2-5.2) cd A-1 at an initial luminous power of 200 mW cm-2 and a luminance of 143-166 cd m-2 at 100 mW cm-2. The decay time of the surface-phosphorescent OLEDs is in the order of 25-30 micros. The results indicate that the efficiency of surface-phosphorescent emission is about two times higher than that of solution-phosphorescent emission and the efficiency roll-off in the present OLEDs is also reduced

The game's appeal to genre is, at the moment of posting, well-balanced with a varied play style, and the introductory moments make it a very interesting, captivating game." WINnipeg Free Press "TERA is an action-packed video game where the player faces off against an assortment of creepy, twisted creatures as they fight for survival and claw their way up the metaphorical food chain." GameSpot "The game can be played by different kinds of people, [and] for different playing speeds." Sottiana "The actual combat is quite intuitive. The controls and camera are well-thought out, and the free-form movement system makes for great action." Kotaku 2. PC game "TERA is a game that is filled to the brim with creativity. The implementation of this graphics technology is visible from the first time you open the game, and throughout the game you will see the developers take great care of the environment and the environment itself." Shinjuku, Online "Most of all, players must enjoy the gameplay. It is quite an enjoyable game, and if you are looking for a game that has a variety of gameplay modes as well as an interesting storyline, then this is definitely the game for you." Kaiki Jeje "In TERA, we think that gamers who want to immerse themselves in a story as they battle hordes of monsters should be happy. In addition to the main quests, we have the good parts of EXP and item collection, as well as bonuses from doing things like clearing out areas with a swarm of spiders in them. We have also added difficulty adjustments and changes that prevent players from only unlocking certain achievements. In TERA, we think that players who want to play a story and seek out more content will be satisfied." "We put in all our focus on making the game fantastic, but we also built more than 150 bugs into the game.
