From the maker of TASTY and Crave comes The Rose of the Apocalypse! Decades before Stigmata, an angel-possessed woman cruelly exploits the girls of the titular 'Apocalypse'. A small but determined group unites with a mother-figure figure to save her young flock. You play as "The Fallen Angel", a woman possessed by an angel's fury, lost in a relentless mission to destroy a group of girls who have been prophesied as the "Rose of the Apocalypse". You'll free trapped souls from hell in exchange for new weapons, be reunited with your loved ones... or die trying. These girls all have a purpose, and it is up to you to decide whether to save them or corrupt them. You'll fight on rooftops and through deadly dungeons, with the ability to block enemy attacks and stymie them with the power of the souls you capture. Take on the role of a fallen angel, a woman possessed by the spirit of an angel, and an exorcist as you do battle in the Spirit Realm as the Wrath of the Apocalypse.

Things To Know Before Your Next VR Hangout June 1, 2017 by Ranae Williams Hello, my internet friends! How are you liking the updates to Stellaris? I'm loving it, which is rare since I've been playing it for years and years. I feel like there is so much to do in the game; it makes the game fun again. I tend to forget my most important turn and miss ship events while I'm toggling through some sub-menu. SkyCoastVR has joined the Stellaris Community (discovered that this morning and have been listening to some of their podcast episodes almost every day). They had some really good questions. I decided to encourage them to do more videos so I thought I'd let them know some interesting facts about Stellaris in the hopes that they'd do a little more. The Stellaris Community is excellent at finding out lots of things that you don't even know! I used an email list for it but you can Google it. There are some things I forgot to mention. Let me know if there are other topics you're interested in in the comments or ask Ranae a better question to ask me. Fun facts: Astronomy Character Sheet So to be honest, this was always planned as something to do once the Martian Colonies were introduced. The background is from my World Panorama mod, Planetary Annihilation, which is a textured version with a lot of customisation. I've ditched that and added a lot of custom art in the main nav menu with markers along the way to start and stop your ships. (I have more custom art) The idea here is to have a small yellow dot on your screen with a title of the section you're currently in. It's basic but I wanted to make a character sheet to indicate the stats of your colonies and ships from their respective sections of the game. The current version will always work, but I'm working on the Colonist Screen to allow them to style the boards differently and to have their ships updated via mod with their cosmetic changes in development. The largest part of the Astrophysics portion is the asteroid and planet modelling and the visibility distance of the bodies. I have a lot of other stuff planned, like the ability to define your star system's weather and anomaly types, the Torus gravity system with able to control for other anomalies to help with balancing, and the ability to do planet shape impostor

Astronomy VR is a VR based story driven sandbox game. Coming at you from an (arguable) Creative Rock band, they say that the game is based on the likes of Ion Fury. "We want to build a universe that players can shape and feel real, like you're there!" - The Digital Chaos

I played and played again until I got addicted. Then I read reviews. Reasonable, one guy reviewed the game and said "Back to the 90's." Okay, I'll give it a try.

Astronomy VR is available as a PC VR debut in your Vive or Oculus Quest compatible rig in the official game store of Oculus, Valve, SteamVR and Vive. Fair warning- I guess it's okay to use proxies in this case, You may be better as a newbie without clear paths or slower than dirt.

"Space is Now," as they say. This is the game.
