In Super Pillow Fight you get to take the role of all of the players and pillows as you fight to gain the highest place in the leaderboard. Pillows can grab and hurl objects, throw their opponent to the ground or knock them off their seat. The person at the top of the leaderboard earns the highest rank. For example the winner is higher up than 2nd place. You can carry objects that you can throw as well as destroy objects to score points. The amount of points you can earn depends on which of the five modes you chose to play. Super Pillow Fight offers a multitude of modes with easy, intermediate or hard settings. You can unlock more modes by collecting gems. Super Pillow Fight offers five different modes to play with: ■

Instant: You only have one round to find a target object for your pillow. Your aim is to finish as high as you can in the leaderboard. ■ Sprint: The only rule of this game is that you have to move the fastest you can. The winner is the pillow who completes the set distance first. ■ Grab: This is a race where pillows should grab any objects on the arena. The person who grabs the biggest set of objects wins. ■ Grab and Toss: This is another race to the largest grab. You get three chances to grab the largest grab, the first time you grab it you will lose, but the second time you get to keep it. ■ Grab and Throw: The last mode is the one where you grab and throw the object closest to you. You need to throw it as hard as you can at your opponents' pillows. News Super Pillow Fight was first available at Game Maker's Code Jam 12, which took place in Brazil this year. Now it is available as a paid downloadable app and is being released globally at the moment. Please check the App Store for Android and other download portals.

SEOUL - North Korean leader Kim Jong-un has received a congratulatory note from his South Korean counterpart Moon Jae-in on the birthday of the former leader Kim Jong-il, state media said Thursday. Kim Jong-un visited a military parade to mark the 64th birthday of Kim Jong-il, North Korea's founder, on Wednesday, which was attended by Kim and top military brass from the two countries. The congratulatory letter, which Moon sent via the North Korean diplomatic mission in Seoul, was delivered Thursday, the North'

In the midst of the Western Sea near the kingdom of Sargava, lies the isolated city of Solace. Situated along the Dragon Coast, Solace is renowned for its vast forests and rich fauna. Less than a day's journey from Sargava, Solace has grown rich and powerful from the vast timber trade. Only in Solace, one could purchase items of vast value and beauty, all imported directly from distant kingdoms in the south. Yet all is not as it seems in Solace. For when men are not crafting furniture and objects from rare woods, they are ferrying small metallic creatures out to sea, so that they may be slain for the rich fat of its blood. These creatures are the Dragonkin, sea hounds that have been transformed by the powers of the warp. The Dragonskin are corrupted creatures that possess supernatural powers, and the drafters who raise them master the ability to bend and mold their bodies into incredibly powerful and deadly weapons. Not even a mighty warrior would stand a chance against a Dragonkin, and it is rumored that there are only two locations in the world which have enough power to cast such a curse in the first place, an ancient temple deep in the heart of the Eastern Wastes and a far off castle in the

ESS IS AT THE (FALLING) MERCY OF BIPOLAR PANIC. Anyone going through a mentally-and-emotionally-hectic time is going to have to close doors on things they really need to give them time to process, and they have to have people in their lives they want to give them space in their life. They're going to have to make hard choices about their priorities, and you don't have to be in the midst of being triggered for it to feel like you've been "ripped from limb-to-limb and dropped into a bottomless pit." In fact, it's pretty cool that you're so unstable that you're anxious about it right now. Unfortunately, that actually makes it pretty much impossible to have an energy-based relationship. You have two people who are in different relationships to their reality, and two different relationships to their bodies and to their minds. You have one person who is in their head almost 100% of the time, and another person who is almost completely in their body. And when you're in the same space it causes boundless amounts of chaos, which is why it's extremely toxic to be in the same place. What does that mean? It means that you can't be in the same space, and still have healthy energy-based relationships. You either have to give space to each person, or you have to give space to the relationship and not try to force a tonal balance on it. However, when you're in a state of panic and feel the need to "fix" every argument/disagreement, it makes things virtually impossible. If either person starts talking to you, try to keep the energy in the relationship happy. If either person starts talking to you, try your best to keep them happy and willing to have a conversation with you. Don't judge where they're talking to and from. Judge the silliness and confusion you're experiencing, and the emotional attachment. And instead of engaging, let your heart break and give space. Let your heart break and let it do what it does, which is calm it down a little bit. You're energy isn't being used to calm it down. You can also separate the person a little bit. This is also where you give them space
